As the summer dragged on, most of the lawyers left Washington and continued working for the Commission only on a very limited part-time basis. All five senior lawyers - Adams, Coleman, Ball, Hubert, and Jenner, in that order - had returned to their private practices a and made virtually no contribution to the writing of the final Report.

--UNQUEST, p.25